Barry Bear has Lots of Friends

This book belongs to

"Everybody likes YOU!" said Charlie, a bear who sits next to me at school.
"How come nobody likes me?"

"That's not true," I told him.
"It is true," Charlie sighed. "You have so many friends and I don't have any! Can you help me? Please."

"It's easy to be a good friend," I told Charlie.

"Like don't say things that might hurt other peoples' feelings. Don't call another kid names or say he's fat or his fur is funky."

Be helpful! If another kid needs you to help him gather honey or weed his garden, go ahead and do it.

If you need help one day, he'll help you.

Laugh with friends, not at them.

Kids are self-conscious about lots of stuff and what's funny to you might not be funny to them.

If your friend is having a hard time or if he flunks a test or doesn't make the team, be there for him.

Friends are friends in good times and bad!

Be a caring friend if your friend is hurt or feeling sick.

Send a get-well card or if he's not "catch-y", bring some comic books or a funny movie and visit him.

Be a good listener. If a friend is having problems, let him talk.

Even if you don't know what to say, being with him is very important.

Don't be a green monster.
Jealousy is a friend-breaker.

If your friend won a prize or got on the honor roll... be as happy for him as you would be for yourself.

If a new kid comes to school, make him feel welcome. Or if you see a kid standing alone on the playground or at a party, go up and talk to him.

"Gee," said Charlie. "That's really good advice. It sounds really simple – to have lots of friends, first you have to be a friend!"

"You've got it!" I said as we high-fived!
